Dear friend,

You've become an integral part of the unique experiment of the No:mad Group. The goal is to mobilize people from different countries around the world to share and create content of the special flash memory to prove the cooperational spirit of all good people. It also means that there is someone in the world who trusts you and sends you this letter with belief that you will add the fuel to the whole package to continue on its journey around the world and send it to next person in our human chain. Once again, when you are reading this, you are joining an exclusive group of people in whose hand lays the fate of this experiment.
